ABOUT US

While Lincolnshire limestone has often been used in architectural masonry (think of Windsor Castle, Palaces of Westminster and Colleges of Oxford), it hadn't yet found its place in the flooring market.

We saw its potential and in 2002, we started Lincolnshire Limestone Flooring, with just a small bench saw and hand-held polishing machine.

Nowadays, we can produce 200 m² per week on our fully automated tile line and have developed our range to include skirting, steps, and staircases.

Renowned for its durability and soft neutral tones, limestone flooring has become increasingly popular with home-owners and architects seeking sustainable solutions for their projects. Our local limestone has established itself as a competitor to counterparts such as Portland and Bath limestone – and we're delighted!

It was a natural step in 2014 to become part of Stamford Stone to give greater choice and better service to all our customers. As a family business, we recognise the value of building relationships with our customers and go to great lengths to satisfy the needs of designers, architects and developers.

WHAT WE OFFER

Since 2002, we have quarried and produced honed limestone tiles from all over Lincolnshire. Our experience has allowed us to refine our range so customers now choose from a select range of favoured stones, with different tones and intriguing fossil markings.

We're experts at sourcing and supplying other materials such as sandstone, marble and slate thanks to contacts built up over the years.

RESIDENTIAL

Local Lincolnshire limestone has always been ideal for kitchens, hallways, orangeries, bathrooms, utility areas or boot rooms. Its close pore structure and density guarantees an extremely durable and versatile floor covering – and investing in new machinery has allowed us to develop different finishes to suit any period of property.

COMMERCIAL

Limestone flooring has become a firm favourite with architects and interior designers who have specified it for bars, public houses, offices, shops and hotels.

RESTORATION PROJECTS

We've been lucky enough to have contributed to the restoration of some of the most prestigious and beautiful buildings across the country, from village churches to city cathedrals. Many Grade 1 or 2 listed buildings also have flagstone floors and we're able to extend, replace and hand-age floors to fit seamlessly with the limestone of old.

FINISHES

Honed finish – very forgiving and easy to maintain a classic satin – matt finish that fits both modern & traditional.

Tumbled finish – tumbled edges gives a soft and textured feel, a rustic timeless finish.

Brushed finish – straight edges with a textured surface.

Hand Aged – literally a hand crafted finish applied by stonemasons to a new stone slightly chamfering the edges/chiselling the edges replicating a stone floor from old.
